

Frontiers in Silicon Chemistry 2011 – 1st Munich Forum on Functional Materials

is an international symposium with special emphasis on new groundbreaking results in silicon-based materials (silicon, silicone, silica, and hybrid materials) with a potential for interesting new applications.

The Silicon Institute of the Technische Universität München (TUM) and Wacker Chemie AG are jointly hosting this new event to foster a scientific exchange of views on new topics in material-oriented silicon chemistry. The program will be rounded out by social evenings with renowned scientists and special guests. The first event of its kind, the forum will take place every two years at the TUM's Garching Campus, outside Munich, Germany.

The 2011 event will take place from Thursday April 14 to Friday April 15. It will include invited lectures and poster presentations by internationally renowned scientists in the field of silicon chemistry. The poster session will be held during the evening of Thursday, April 14. It will be accompanied by a social get-together. Contributors in the field of material oriented silicon chemistry are cordially invited to apply for posters: see www.makro.ch.tum.de/si-frontiers2011 for details. Oral presentations are by invitation only.

An example of cooperation between Wacker Chemie AG and TUM, the Silicone Institute was founded in December 2006. The collaborative scientific research covers the whole spectrum of silicon chemistry, with the aim of developing new functional materials.

The conference language will be English.

By car

Autobahn A9. Exit the A9 at “Garching Nord“ (exit 70) and follow the sign “Landshut/Freising/Garching“ (B11). After about 500 m, turn left at the traffic light (Freisinger Landstrasse/B11). Follow the signs for TUM Forschungsinstitute. After another 600 m, turn right into Lichtenbergstrasse.

By public transport (München Hauptbahnhof)

From the main train station: Take any S-Bahn to Marienplatz (second stop on every eastbound line). Change from the S-Bahn to the U6 subway line. Make sure you take a U6 that goes to Garching-Forschungszentrum, as not every U6 goes there.

From the airport

Take the S8 S-Bahn train to Ismaning (direction of Herrsching). Then change to Bus 230A to Garching Technische Universität.
